

STING CLOSES GUN FACTORY

Jailed: James Jones received a seven-year term after manufacturing firearms, some of which can be seen in the centre picture

Convicted: Kasheef Hardy was sentenced to ten years' imprisonment for conspiracy to supply a firearm and ammunition

By Lee Husson

POLICE have closed down a factory in Haringey used to convert replica firearms into real guns following an elaborate undercover operation involving a fake hip-hop music store.

Codenamed Operation Peyzac, the £500,000 sting snared 37 criminals – 34 of whom have been jailed for a total of more than 400 years. Criminals visiting the store, called Boombbox, during the year-long operation were encouraged to use a private back room where they were caught on hidden cameras and microphones selling guns, drugs and stolen goods to police officers posing as crooks.

Cameras captured one man selling officers four guns, which he had carried to the store in a plastic bag on a busy bus, while another was filmed handing over a large stash of cocaine which had a street value of £4,000.

Armed with evidence obtained through the store in Edmonton, police carried out a number of raids last April, swooping on 35 addresses across north and east London.

As well as guns and drugs, they uncovered swords, knives, a stun gun and large amounts of cash, with one address in Haringey being used as a gun conversion factory.

The raids led to the arrest of 37 suspects aged between 16 and 41 – 30 of whom are believed to be gang members. They were charged with crimes including drugs and firearms offences and money laundering.

They were all convicted at Wood Green Crown Court during August and strict reporting restrictions have now been lifted.

Among those charged was James Jones, of Collingwood Road, South Tottenham. The 27-year-old was sentenced to seven years in jail for manufacturing firearms and ammunition and possession of a firearm.

Detective Chief Inspector Paul Harwood, the senior investigator, said: "It is believed that James Jones had converted many more firearms than actually recovered. He specialised in Olympic .38 starting pistols, which he converted to live firing firearms. This particular make of starting pistol is now illegal to possess in the UK.

"Twenty-one firearms were recovered by police and through the operation it was clear those selling the firearms had no regard as to who they were selling to and for what reason."

DCI Harwood also hailed the operation as one of the most successful ever. He said: "Operation Peyzac is seen as one of the most innovative and successful covert operations run by the Met, and this is down to the bravery and dedication of the undercover officers."

Also jailed was Damien McGowan, 33, also of Collingwood Road, South Tottenham. He was sentenced to ten years for conspiracy to supply nine firearms and ammunition.

Kasheef Hardy, 25, of Mount View Court, Turnpike Lane, was sentenced for conspiracy to supply a firearm and ammunition and jailed for ten years.

And Akwari Nyarko, 25, of Chandos Road, Tottenham, was jailed for six years for conspiracy to supply a firearm.

Panel calls on expertise of community to lift borough

A NEW panel drawing on the expertise and experience of the community to improve living conditions in the borough has met for the first time.

Haringey Council bosses say the aim of the panel is "making Haringey a better place than ever before" - though inevitably its initial focus will be in the shadow of the riot in Tottenham which devastated homes and businesses.

Council leader Claire Kober, who will chair the panel, said: "We're eager to build on the energy and commitment which have been so strong in Haringey since the disturbances.

"The emphasis of the panel will be on pulling together the views, knowledge and ideas of the community. No one person or group has a monopoly on this, which is why we wanted a varied panel to listen to people's views.

"Everyone has a right to be heard and I am confident in the panel's ability to listen and to bring thinking together into practical recommendations to move us forward for the benefit of everyone."

The panel met for the first time earlier this month to agree its approach, how best to engage with groups and individuals and its timetable.

An action plan with a timetable will soon be published, as will regular updates on progress.

Ms Kober added that the panel will link up with the borough's area forums to maximise involvement from the community. She said: "This is not about a fixed agenda; we want to hear what the community wants to see and try to take that forward.

"The voluntary sector and other parts of the community already have an enviable reputation for high achievement and anything we can do to help with that must be good."

The panel includes teachers, religious leaders, representatives from welfare and advice groups, housing officials and residents.

Royal reader at launch of pupil poetry competition

By Mary McConnell

THE Duchess Of Cornwall and the poet laureate Carol Ann Duffy launched a new poetry competition for schoolchildren at a school in Muswell Hill last week.

The Duchess met students at Alexandra Park School, in Bidwell Gardens, last Wednesday before she took to the stage to read out one of her favourite poems – My Heart Is In The Highlands by Robert Burns.

Students are being asked to create their own poetry anthologies, compiled of existing published poems, for the Poetry Society's new competition Anthologise.

Launching the competition, Ms Duffy said: "Dozens of schools have already expressed huge excitement before today's launch.

"It is teachers who unlock the doors of poetry and I know that there are thousands of people who owe their love of or ability to write poetry to their teachers.

"Anthologise will, I hope, provide a new way for teachers and students to engage with poetry of the past and with vibrant contemporary poems."

Ms Duffy also read out her favourite poem, The Song Of Wandering Aengus, by WB Yeats, and told the audience: "I fell in love with it when I was about 12 and have never really got over it."

The Duchess explained why she chose to read Burns' poem and said: "It is very evocative for me because it is a place I love very much and where I have spent a lot of time."

Students from seven schools across the country also read out their favourite poems, including Blackberry Picking by Seamus Heaney and La Belle Dame Sans Merci by John Keats.

Ms Duffy said they had decided to launch the poetry competition at Alexandra Park School because one of the judges, professor of children's poetry Morag Styles, is the sister of former headteacher Ros Hudson, who founded the school.

"She was headteacher until just a couple of years ago and I know that the English department here is excellent," she added.

"There are lots of competitions asking children to write poems, but there has never been a competition like this.

"As poet laureate I have always been keen to encourage children to read poetry and I am always very impressed with how poetry is taught in schools. Teachers really do unlock the doors of poetry."

The competition, which is open to all secondary school children, is a Laureate Education Project administered by the Poetry Society.

The winning entry will be chosen by a panel of six judges, including Carol Ann Duffy and the National Poet for Wales Gillian Clarke.

Emma to tackle fear and summit in dad's memory

By Anthony Peyton

A MOTHER-OF-THREE is set to tackle the UK's highest peak – and her own vertigo – for charity in memory of her late father.

Emma Davies, 41, a pilates teacher from Bounds Green, will climb Ben Nevis in Scotland next Friday to honour Ted Piggott, who passed away from prostate cancer in 1993.

Mr Piggott served in the Fleet Air Arm during World War II and was well-known in the community for his work for the Royal British Legion and the Burma Star Association.

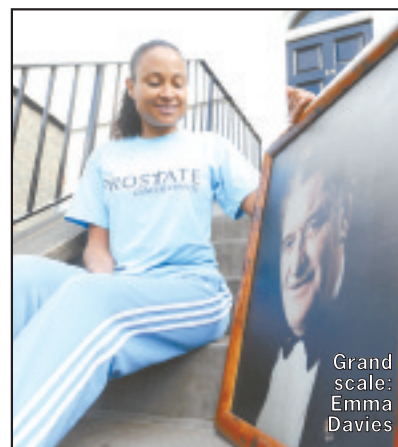

All funds raised by the walk will go to The Prostate Cancer Charity.

Emma said: "Having experienced such a great loss, I know what impact this disease has on men affected and their families. This has given me the drive to challenge myself and to raise awareness for The Prostate Cancer Charity."

When Mr Piggott was originally diagnosed with cancer he was told he had weeks to live. This sadly proved to be correct and he died ten weeks later.

The effect on Emma, who was eight months' pregnant at the time, was devastating. She told the Advertiser that her father had been her rock and the strongest man she had ever met.

A cherished photo shows her father on a mountain in the United States. It was this image – and a desire to challenge her fear of heights – which inspired Emma to conquer Ben Nevis, which is 4,408ft above sea level.

The climb is expected to take about nine hours and Emma has prepared thoroughly with long-distance walks and runs.

Singing praises at new-look Ally Pally

A FEW months ago I attended a press conference at Alexandra Palace in which it was announced plans were afoot to transform the historic building into a prestigious music venue.

What was particularly eyebrow-raising was not so much the planned usage for major gigs – the palace already hosts a number of A-Lister DJs, rock and pop bands etc – but the suggestion that other musical forms would be embraced in this all-encompassing vision.

Little did I suspect that what they preached would be put into practise so rapidly. Last week visitors enjoyed the return of the organ concerts in the Great Hall while this Sunday the BBC is teaming up with the palace to celebrate one of its most popular programmes, Songs Of Praise, turning 50.

To mark the golden anniversary it has assembled an all-star line-up for a spirit-lifting sing-along to mark its half century.

Aled Jones will be joined on stage by other famous Songs Of Praise presenters including: Pam Rhodes, Diane Louise Jordan and Sally Magnusson while the singers

What's more audience members will, of course, be able to join in such stirring hymns as Guide Me O Thou Great Redeemer and Jerusalem.

Belly-filling pies perfectly baked with brotherly love

Restaurant News

Mick's Pie And Tash, 183 Chase Side, Enfield. 020 8363 0802

ENFIELD'S latest culinary offering is a pie and mash shop that is certain to fill anyone's starved stomach.

Mick's Pie And Tash gives hungry workers and ravenous youngsters both filling and tasty pies, cooked to perfection with flaky pot crusts and a soft suet base. It is the only pie and mash shop in north London.

Named after their father Mick, who passed away seven years ago – and his famous moustache, brothers Ricky and Clint Edmunds opened the shop in memory of him in June to great success thanks to word of mouth.

"It's been very successful so far. Even before we opened we had 400 fans on Facebook," said Ricky.

In contrast to the wonders of social media, the family recipe used in the pie making dates back to the 1890s. Pie and mash shops have existed as far back as the 18th century as the working classes sought cheap ways to fill their stomachs. Originally eels were used as fillings in the pies because of their abundance in the then dirty Thames and potatoes were a cheap source of food.

These particular pies (eel-free, though you can buy stewed and jelly eels separately) come from a family-run business, Goddard's Pies, owned by two brothers who also lost their father.

Mick's is also a family business with Clint, 33, and Ricky, 27, running the shop with their mother, Pauline, 59, along with their friend, Tony Taylor, 27. Before Mick's Pie and Tash, the shop had been a bakery for more than 100 years.

Walking into the shop, the smell of pastry hits you instantly. The green and white tiles with the wooden tables create a clean and homely feel with blackboards on the wall reminiscent of a butcher's own.

Pies served include the traditional British mince beef pie and the steak and kidney pie. They also do specials on Friday and Saturday such as chicken and mushroom, and cheese and onion.

Earning a crust: Pie-baking brothers Ricky and Clint Edmunds

Hearty meals come under a fiver (£3.90) for a traditional beef pie with mash and liquor.

Vegetarians can also have a slice of the action with the soya mince pie and kids can get their own pie with the kids' meal option, offering the same traditional mince beef pie, though smaller, with mash, gravy or liquor and a drink for only £3.20.

Mum Pauline praised her sons, adding that "their dad would be proud of them".

● Opening: Mondays to Fridays, 11am to 5.30pm, and Saturdays, 11am-till... all the pies go!

REDKNAPP: GIVE LUKA NEW DEAL

By Tom Sweetman

TOTTENHAM HOTSPUR boss Harry Redknapp has called for chairman Daniel Levy to open contract talks with Croatian midfielder Luka Modric following his superb opening goal in Sunday's 4-0 home win over Liverpool.

The 26-year-old had captured the attention of Chelsea during the recent transfer window, but Spurs stood strong for the whole summer, eventually turning down a £40million offer.

The Croatian was left out of the side for last month's 3-0 defeat at Manchester United after claims that his head was not in the right place, but he now appears to be back to his best.

"Luka is fine now, he's just getting on with it," Redknapp said. "I think the chairman will discuss his contract – that's what I'd like. He [Levy] has said he would give it six or seven weeks, sit down and have a chat with him."

Spurs enjoyed their first league win of the season against Wolves in their previous outing, and they built on that at White Hart Lane as they embarrassed Liverpool – having 16 attempts on goal compared to the visitors' two.

Modric showed why Chelsea were willing to pay so much for him when he opened Tottenham's account by curling home brilliantly from 25 yards, leaving keeper Jose Reina with no chance.

Jermain Defoe doubled Tottenham's lead on 65 minutes with a typical finish when he hit a powerful effort into the bottom right-hand corner.

Emmanuel Adebayor pounced on Reina's mistake two minutes later, poking the ball into the net to score on his home debut and make it three.

And the striker continued his terrific form by grabbing his third goal in two appearances when he scored again in the dying minutes of the game.

Redknapp added: "I thought we played some fantastic football, we absolutely dominated. If you can't enjoy the football we played then there's something wrong with you."

"The first 25 minutes was football at its best. We were by far the better team and we should have been two or three in front."

It's good to talk: Manager Harry Redknapp believes chairman Daniel Levy should speak to Luka Modric about a new deal

Worrell grabs a hat-trick to seal thrilling victory

RICHARD WORRELL scored a hat-trick as Haringey Borough enjoyed a thrilling 3-2 victory at home to St Margaretsbury defender Ollie Sharman in the Spartan Premier Division.

Worrell's treble was enough to deservedly give Borough all three points last Tuesday as they temporarily climbed up to fifth place in the table.

The striker opened the scoring in the fourth minute with a well-taken penalty after St Margaretsbury defender Ollie Sharman had handled in the box.

The visitors managed to equalise against the run of play on 27 minutes. Borough keeper Ryohei Tamai was unable to deal with Anthony Anstead's long-range effort, as what should have been a routine catch fell through his arms and into the net.

However, Borough responded well to this and Worrell was again their hero four minutes later when he came in from the right and unleashed a ferocious drive from the edge of the area which gave the keeper no chance.

The match continued in the same end-to-end fashion in the second half, and the visitors equalised on 80 minutes through a close-range effort from Scott McGuinness.

Yet Worrell would have the final say as he scored the winner three minutes later with a low shot past the keeper, after a fine run and cross from substitute Rakim Richards.

The teams meet again at Coles Park on Saturday in the second qualifying round of the FA Vase.
